1. Paragraph 4 a (1), page 49, taken as a whole, is not entirely correct. Army and Air Force regulations outline the objectives of the Reserve active duty for training program and the responsibilities of proponent agencies in these programs. CIA is the proponent agency for its Army and Air Force mobilization units and, as such, is responsible for insuring that active duty for training is directed toward maintaining the proficiency of the mobilization designee in his designated mobilization assignment.

2. I believe that a need exists for an internal training program which could be used for the active duty training of Agency military reservists. However, I agree that there is a serious doubt as to whether training which is limited to UW operations is proper training either from a military or Agency viewpoint. Rather, I believe more emphasis should be placed on military subjects and the Agency's wartime role in support of the military in general.

3. Pursuant to the provisions of Regulation representatives of the Deputy Directors (Intelligence), (Plans), and (Support) have been designated to advise on the use and training of Agency reservists. Therefore, in lieu of your recommendation that the Director of Training and the Commanding Officers of the Army and Air Reserve units confer on this matter, I propose to ask the advisory committee, augmented by a representative from OTR, to study the problem and recommend a suitable training program.
